ANNOUNCEMENT

I am offering for sale for the season of 1923, 8,000 to 10,000 Hachiya persimmon trees. These are budded, or grafted on stock of the Diospyros Lotus, grown from seed especially imported from Japan through the most reliable source.

I have been growing persimmons for 25 years, and have nearly 1,000 trees in my orchards, embracing eight varieties. Of these the Hachiya is the only one propagated for commercial purposes for the following reasons: It grows into a large well-shaped tree. The fruit is large, of beautiful shape and color; and ripens evenly. It is picked while hard, and can be handled, or cold stored exactly the same as the Bartlett pear. Shipments to the Eastern markets during the past season brought wonderful prices; and the ruling price on the Los Angeles market was 12 cents per pound.

The potential market is unlimited as the delicious fruit is not even known, except in a few of the large cities, and is available at a time when the market is bare of fresh fruits.

The Hachiya during my experience of 25 years has never failed to produce a good crop. There is no disease apparent of trees or fruit, and no insect pests. There is no danger from frost damage in any locality suitable for citrus or walnuts.

The large number of trees I have in bearing enables me to practice careful bud selection. The best trees are marked, and from them only are scions cut by myself in person.

It is an ideal tree to interset with oranges or lemons making possible double income from the land.

An article on the persimmon was printed in the California Cultivator, October, 29, 1921, to which reference is made for an extended account of the persimmon.

The advance inquiry makes it certain that all available stock will be sold early next year, as it was the past season and buyers are advised to make early reservations.

Inspection of nursery and orchard is invited.
